Re: King ve. Oddfellows.

Dear Mr. Kearns:

I received word yesterday that trial of the above case has been postponed for one week. The trial will commence on October 16th instead of October 9th.

I suggest we meet here in my office on Thursday evening, October 5th, at 7:30 p.m., to review the situation and make the necessary plans for trial.

The attorneys for King have been inquiring about the payment which came due in September. I told them that the Oddfellows do not have the funds to meet such payment, but that we would let them know what can be done as soon as reasonably possible. By the time of our meeting let me know just what the financial condition is and what plans you have for future financing.

Loren Hosmer told me that you might want to form another corporation and sell stock to lodges as well as individuals, if by doing so you think that you can raise sufficient money to pay off the property in full. I believe it would be advisable to get firm commitments from those to whom you desire to sell stock before going to the trouble and expense of forming a new corporation.

Yours very truly,

GHA:B
